

Everything's Gonna Be All Right

Well I toss and I turn
Under the pressure of the night.
All my bridges have burned,
And left me here without a light.
And with no familiar landmarks
And no star leading home,
I curl up into a ball and roll
With any old wind that blows.

Driving through ghost country,
I've seen you standing by the road.
I thought I'd be back for you
When I was worth my weight in gold.
O but I've been digging deep,
And I still haven't struck that vein—
Well I think of you and me
When I need shelter from the rain.

Everything's gonna be all right—
O everything's gonna be all right someday.

In and out of the shadows,
Boxing and dancing with my dreams,
Until I'm tired and worn,
Needing a stitch to bind my seams—
O maybe I don't want much—
I'm not asking you to hide me—
I need a cool ride down the road
With the radio on and you beside me.

Everything's gonna be all right—
O everything's gonna be all right someday.
